

The Jewish Studies Program at Kent State and Kent Hillel invite you to a showing of Mel Brook's original film of

The Producers

To be shown

September 22, 8pm, at the Kiva

Entrance free of charge

The 1968 classic about two Jewish producers who decide to put on a Nazi musical revue. This is a cult classic, and probably Mel Brooks' funniest, wittiest film ever. At the same time, it deals with important issues of how Jews and gentiles in the post-WWII era chose to remember the Nazi past. While entertaining, it was and remains a controversial film.

You're invited to remain afterwards for a discussion of these and other issues.

All are welcome!!

Sponsored by the Jewish Studies Program and Kent Hillel. Call 330-672-8924 for more information.