Join historian and staff member of the Jewish Museum Berlin

Thorsten Wagner

as he lectures on this fascinating subject. Mr. Wagner, of the Technische Universität Berlin and the Danish Research Agency, examines the Danish rescue in October 1943 and finds the record in need of reassessment. While the rescue of the Jews still stands as an act of heroism, what exactly does it tell us about Danish society? Mr. Wagner shows how the canvas of history turns out to have more shades of grey than is usually presumed.
